NOVOROSSISK FALLS
—GERMAN CLAIM

STALINGRAD'S DEFENCES FIRM

A SPECIAL announcement from Herr Hitler's headquarters last night stated:—"The land and sea fortress of Novorossisk, last military harbour of importance after the capture of Sebastopol still at the disposal of the Soviet Black Sea fleet, has fallen."

The German advance has been halted south-west and north-west of Stalingrad, and on the latter sector the German flank is menaced from the Kletskaya area, where the attacking Russians—outside the encirclement shackling the city from north and south—are maintaining a supply link with Moscow.

At the eastern end of the Caucasian front the German crossing over the Terek River has been smashed.

STRONG RUSSIAN RESISTANCE

BERLIN, Sunday.—The German News Agency says that German and Rumanian troops have penetrated into extremely hard, defended fortifications in the Stalingrad area. "During vain relief attacks 84 Soviet armoured vehicles were destroyed," the Agency adds.

Strong Russian attacks south-west of Kaluga are reported by German Radio. The Germans are fighting heavy defensive battles, it was stated, with hand-to-hand fighting at some points. In some places the Russians succeeded in breaking through the German lines, but were thrown back after heavy trench fighting, the radio claimed. Russian attacks on a strong scale continued at Rzhev, it was said.

The radio claimed the destruction of 2,440 tanks and 547 Russian aircraft during the August battles at Rzhev and near Kaluga. The Germans' main defensive line south-west of Kaluga and west of Medyn was retained, it was claimed.—(Reuter.)

The German High Command stated last night: "After bringing up fresh reserves the enemy is attempting to offer desperate resistance at Stalingrad. After the enemy had brought up more infantry and tank support he continued his attacks between the Volga and the Don to relieve the pressure on Stalingrad with ten rifle divisions and seven tank brigades. All the Soviet counter-attacks were smashed, and 84 tanks destroyed. Some local breaches made by the Soviets were cleared up in a counter-thrust."—(Reuter.)

Yesterday's German communiqué said: "On the Taman peninsula, in a rapid thrust to the south, the last enemy resistance has been broken, and thereby the entire peninsula east of the Straits of Kerch has been taken. A number of prisoners have been taken, and 37 light and heavy guns captured.

"In the eastern part of the Black Sea German MTBs sank four steamers and four lighters aggregating 9,500 tons. In the Caucasus Alpine troops, after several days of fighting against stubborn enemy resistance, have taken another high mountain pass."—(Reuter.)

THE CAUCASUS

Reuter's Correspondent in Stockholm says: "In the North Caucasus, the Russians have succeeded in smashing the German bridgehead across the Terek River, thus relieving for the time being some of the danger to the Grozny oilfields. German attacks continue, however, and it is still too early to predict the outcome of this fierce mountain battle."

Moscow Radio claims an advance, in which Soviet troops occupied new positions against German tanks, infantry and Alpine divisions "making tremendous efforts to break through to Grozny." "The Germans tried at all costs to cross the Terek, but Soviet troops repelled one attack after another, and often launched counter-attacks."

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

"During September 6 our troops fought fierce engagements in the areas north-west and south-west of Stalingrad, and in the areas of Novorossisk and Mozdok. During the week ending September 6, 460 German aircraft were brought down in air combat and destroyed by A.A. fire and on enemy aerodromes. Our losses for the same period were 250.

"Our warships in the Baltic Sea sank an enemy transport of 10,000 tons. On September 5 seventy German bombers attempted to reach Moscow, but were dispersed and forced to retreat. Eleven enemy aircraft were shot down for the loss of one Soviet 'plane.

"In the area of Novorossisk Soviet troops fought heavy defensive engagements with enemy tanks and infantry and routed one Rumanian battalion. At one point Soviet troops had to make a fighting retreat.

"North-west of Stalingrad our troops dislodged the enemy from a number of inhabited localities. In these operations the enemy suffered heavy losses. On the adjoining sector Soviet tank crews broke into the enemy positions and destroyed eight anti-tank guns, seven tanks, 23 lorries, and annihilated about 200 German officers and men. South-west of Stalingrad enemy tanks and infantry, supported by aircraft, launched ceaseless attacks on our positions. Soviet troops are holding their positions and repelling enemy attacks. A group of German tommy-gunners, which had infiltrated into our positions, was wiped out to a man.

INDIAN DISORDERS

BIG COLLECTIVE FINES

BOMBAY, Sunday.—A collective fine of £3,750 has been imposed on Baramati, in the Poona district, as punishment for the recent Civil Disobedience disturbances. Several areas in the districts of Cawnpore, Bulandshahr and Partabgarh, in the United Provinces, have been fined £4,000.—(Reuter.)

NEW DELHI, Sunday.—Mr Jinnah, the Moslem President, urged to-day that Moslems should be excluded from collective fines already imposed, or that may be imposed, on districts where disturbances have occurred. He said that there was "serious apprehension" that if fines are based on the territorial principle "innocent Moslems will also suffer."—(Reuter.)

STRAITS GUN DUEL

A big gun duel, lasting forty-five minutes, took place across the Dover Straits last night. The shelling began at dusk, and some of the shells from the German batteries near Dunkirk and at Calais and Cap Gris Nez burst in the vicinity of Dover. About 100 shells were exchanged.

DEATH OF LORD HOLMPATRICK

A USEFUL CAREER

DESCENDANT of the Iron Duke, Hans Wellesley Hamilton, second Baron Holmpatrick, died at his residence, Abbotstown, Castleknock, County Dublin, on Saturday, after a short illness. He was aged 56.

The death of Lord HolmPatrick has deprived Eire of one of its outstanding citizens, whose work in national and social interests earned him a place of well-deserved prominence in the nation's affairs. Son of Ion Trant Hamilton, first Baron HolmPatrick and for many years Conservative M.P. for Dublin, and the late Lady HolmPatrick, daughter of the late Lord Charles Wellesley, he served with the rank of Captain in the 16th-5th Lancers during the Great War, was wounded, mentioned in despatches, and won the D.S.O. and Military Cross in France. On his return to civilian life Lord HolmPatrick began to display such interest in national and social affairs that the many organisations and undertakings with which he became associated demanded almost his complete attention. Of his numerous interests, none, perhaps, provided him with such satisfaction as his work for the training of youth and the Scout movement, and he will be remembered with feelings of deep gratitude by those associated with the development of the Baden-Powell Scout organisation, which enjoyed the fullest measure of his support, even to the extent of the free use of his grounds at Abbotstown, and which chose him as Commissioner for the Scouts in Leinster.

VARIED INTERESTS

His tireless work in other directions was reflected in the distinctions and responsibilities he shouldered as President of the Royal Zoological Society, Chairman of Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, Vice-President of the Royal Dublin Society, District Staff Officer, Local Security Force, Howth Command; member of the Dublin County A.R.P. Liaison Staff, Chairman of the Board of Governors of King's Hospital School, Dublin; Governor of Morgan's School, Castleknock; Parochial Nominator of Castleknock Church, and Treasurer and member of the Select Vestry; Governor of the Rotunda Hospital, member of the Castleknock and Blanchardstown Parish Council, Hon. Treasurer of the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families' Association, member of the Committee of the Royal Irish Automobile Club, Trustee of Irish Hospitals' Trust, and member of the Committee of the Richmond Institution for the Blind. A keen student of horticulture and arboriculture, he won many distinctions at the Royal Horticultural Society of Ireland Shows, and was President of the Society for many years. As President of the Royal Zoological Society he was instrumental in making the Zoological Gardens the popular public resort and centre of scientific study that they now are. He presided regularly at the meetings of the Council, attended all its functions, and encouraged the development of that national institution by every means in his power. The committees of the various hospitals and humanitarian associations with which he was connected valued his assistance, advice and encouragement, and the Council of the Irish Red Cross Society also had him as a member.

His love for animals and his interest in sport were second only to his concern for the betterment of the community. He was Joint Master of Ireland's premier pack, the Meath Hounds, for four years, retiring at the end of the 1925-6 season. He was Steward of the Phœnix Park racecourse, Chairman of the Meath Hunt Committee, and a member of the Kildare Street and Cavalry Clubs.

In 1925 he married Edina Dorothy Hope, sister of the 5th Marquess Conyngham, and he leaves two children—the Hon. Caroline Hamilton and the Hon. James Hamilton, fourteen years old heir to the title. He is survived also by his sisters, the Hon. Mrs. Cecil Pelham, Lady Swinfen and the Hon. Sybil Hamilton.

The Stewards of the Phœnix Park meeting on Saturday passed a vote of condolence with Lady Holmpatrick.

Howth District Command of the L.S.F., meeting yesterday, passed a vote of sympathy with Lady Holmpatrick. Reference was made at the meeting to Lord HolmPatrick's work for the force, to which he had presented a cup for competition among the members, and to his efforts on the Emergency Services Joint Committee, on which he was the Howth representative.

U.S. ANTI-INFLATION

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—President Roosevelt put the finishing touches to his anti-inflation programme to-day, while several Senators served notice that any step to sweep aside the statutory safeguards for farm prices would precipitate a grave breach between the President and Congress. Senator Norris, one of the President's staunchest supporters, said: "I hope the President won't make a mistake like that. It would raise hell in Congress. It could only result in a fight between the President and Congress, and such a fight might lose this war." The President is to announce the programme in a message to Congress, and in a radio fireside chat to-morrow.—(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt's anti-inflation programme contemplates limitation of wages and salaries and farm prices, and the appointment of an economic administration with wide powers.—(Reuter.)

TWO NORTHERN POLICE DIE FROM WOUNDS

AMBUSH IN COUNTY TYRONE

TWO members of the police patrol which was ambushed in the border village of Clady, Co. Tyrone, on Saturday night, have died from their wounds.

They are Constable James Laird (42), of Londonderry, a married man with four children, and Special Constable Samuel Hamilton, of Sion Mills, Co. Tyrone, married, with one child.

The story of the ambush was told in a statement by the Police Headquarters in Belfast yesterday afternoon. It said:—

"On Saturday a party of police, consisting of one R.U.C. constable and three constables of the Special Constabulary, was fired upon while on duty in Clady village, Tyrone. The police returned the fire. An R.U.C. constable and two special constables were wounded. The R.U.C. constable, Constable Laird, has since died."

The patrol, it was learned later, was taking over duty at Clady. Special Constable George Hunter had moved a little distance along the road with his bicycle, and Constable Laird and the other policemen were in conversation. Suddenly there was a shot, apparently from a "Tommy" gun, and Laird, Hamilton and another special named Samuel Reid were wounded. The policemen returned the fire, which appeared to come from an unoccupied house about fifty yards away. In a short time there was quiet, the assailants having escaped in the darkness.

Later the injured men were taken to the local barracks in a clergyman's motor car. Laird died before the ambulance arrived, but Hamilton rallied until yesterday afternoon, when he died in Strabane Hospital.

SATURDAY INCIDENTS

The Clady shooting followed news of an attack in Belfast earlier in the day. According to a statement by the police, at 8 a.m. on Saturday a young man named Gerald Adams (16½), of Abercorn street, Belfast, while running down Sultan street, fired on the police from a revolver. "One policeman was slightly wounded in the foot. The police returned the fire, with the result that Adams, who was arrested, received wounds which necessitated his removal to hospital. This morning (Saturday) a young man of 16½, named Gerald Hodgson, Grosvenor road, who was charged with the possession of illegal documents, was detained. As the result of the search carried out at Distillery street, in which one revolver, six rounds of .45 ammunition and three Mills bombs were discovered, Joseph Quinn (17), of that address, and Thomas Albert Collins (24), of Ton street, have been detained."

It is understood that only 40 of the 100 or more men rounded up in raids during the week now remain under detention. The police regard the position as well in hand.

SOLDIERS DROWNED

BRAVE RESCUE EFFORTS

Two members of the Army, at present engaged in manœuvres, were drowned in the Blackwater at Thomas Ashe quay, Fermoy, yesterday. They were Lieutenant T. A. Ryan and Sergeant John McElligott, both of the 12th Battalion.

Sergeant McElligott was a native of Rathea, Listowel, County Kerry, and a brother of Captain McElligott, of the same battalion. He leaves a widow and family. Lieutenant Ryan was a native of Cashel, and brother of Flying Officer Ryan, who was killed in an air accident near Dublin about two years ago.

It appears that a party of soldiers were engaged in fording a river, which they entered partly clothed. When near the opposite bank one man called for help and was rescued. Sergeant McElligott, when only about five yards from the quay wall, got into difficulties and sank. A civilian, James Coleman, jumped into the river fully clothed. He managed to grasp the drowning man, but he, too, got into difficulties.

Lieutenant Ryan, who had almost reached the opposite bank, sank and did not come to the surface.

Both bodies were recovered about half an hour later after dragging operations.

Several gallant attempts to rescue the soldiers were made by Messrs. Edward F[illegible] M[illegible]hill, and John Maloney, National Bank.

BOMBS ON BUDAPEST

BIG RUSSIAN RAID

MOSCOW, Sunday.—Hundreds of bombs were dropped when Russian 'planes raided Budapest—in the Hungarian capital's first raid—on Friday night, Pravda reported to-day. Iron and steel plants, machine-building works, an oil refinery, the arsenal, and a large railway shunting yard were the main targets for the Soviet bombs. Squadron after squadron of powerful bombers took off, one after another, from separate aerodromes.

During the whole flight the pilots had to struggle with adverse weather until they were right over the target area, where the landmarks were moonlit. Hundreds of bombs of various calibres hit military objectives and war industrial plants. Big fires and explosions broke out.—(Press Association.)

COMMUNAL HARVESTING

To surmount labour difficulties and reduce costs, farmers in many parts of the country may adopt a system of communal harvesting.

This system, which has already been applied successfully in the Northern counties, saves the farmer a good deal of trouble, owing to the scarcity of suitable labour. Groups of from thirty to forty farmers come together, and all of them agree to give their services for a day or two to each member of the group in turn. Thus each member, instead of devoting weeks to the harvesting of his own crops, is able to have his corn cut, or flax pulled, in two days by the thirty or forty men on the job.

In the last month or so the system has been used in County Monaghan for flax-pulling operations, and, while it might not be so useful in the case of grain crops during unsuitable weather, it is becoming more popular among the smaller farmers.

PREPARE TO BLACK-OUT

The Government propose to hold black-out tests at intervals during the coming winter in the principal cities and towns in Eire. It will be recalled that provisions for a black-out of lighting throughout the country have been made in an Emergency Powers Order, which renders it obligatory on all householders to co-operate fully in the black-out precautions. The object of the tests is to ensure that preparations are being made by all affected parties, so that they will be in a position to comply strictly with the regulations should their continuous enforcement become necessary.

For the information of the public detailed instructions have been prepared in a handbook by the Department of Defence, and the book is now on sale.

DUBLIN'S DARKNESS

Complaints from people in all the suburbs that Dublin was darker than usual during the week-end reached Alderman A. Byrne, T.D., and last night he sent the following telegram to the City Manager:—"Complete black-out in parts of city and suburbs during week-end; positively a serious danger to life and property. People unprepared and without torches. Revision of arrangements and improvement in public lighting urgently requested."

U.S. TANKER SUNK

LISBON, Sunday.—A life-boat, with 28 survivors from the American tanker, Jack Charles, torpedoed off the Azores, has reached Porto de Vila Novo. Another life-boat, with about the same number of men, is so far missing.—(Reuter.)

BRITISH TOWNS BOMBED

RAIDS OVER FRANCE

OF six German bombers reported over Britain during daylight yesterday, two were shot down by British fighters. They were Junkers 88's, which flew along the north-east coast.

One was driven over Redcar, Yorkshire, and, after escaping a heavy anti-aircraft barrage, was shot down at Marske-by-the-Sea. Two of the crew, who baled out, were killed, one falling into a reservoir. The other was brought down at Sludgate, Robin Hood's Bay, near Whitby, Yorkshire. The two occupants baled out. One landed near Sludgate, and was arrested by Home Guards; the other fell into the sea, but was rescued and landed at Scarborough.

Four raiders attacked a South-East coast town, but their bombs caused no casualties and little damage.

A few casualties and also damage to a cottage were caused by slight raiding activity over the West of England on Saturday night.

Single raiders flew over East Anglia and the Home Counties on Saturday, and London had its first daylight "alert" since August 25. One raiding aircraft was shot down off the East coast of England. No bombs were dropped in the London area.

BERLIN, Sunday.—The German High Command to-day claimed that in Saturday's raids on Britain, targets at Dover, Norwich, Yeovil and Dorchester were hit, while "other attacks were directed against an important industrial works North of London and a port on the South coast."

The German News Agency yesterday mentioned "effective attacks on military targets and targets of war importance in Dover and Norwich," and added: "A number of fires and explosions attested to the accuracy of the German bombing."—(Reuter.)

NORTHERN FRANCE

Large formations of aircraft passed over coastal areas of Southern England yesterday on their way across the Channel, and late in the afternoon a large force of American bombers, escorted by Spitfires, attacked objectives in Northern France. It is believed, says the Press Association, that all the bombers came back safely.

Early last night the Royal Air Force was over Northern France in force. At Folkestone large numbers of 'planes were heard returning across the Straits.

Masses of Allied 'planes flew over a wide area of Northern France—a triangle between Le Havre, Rouen and Cayeux—in daylight on Saturday last in a dual offensive, in which United States Flying Fortress bombers made their biggest raid yet across the Channel.

Three squadrons of Flying Fortresses scored many direct hits on Rouen's great marshalling yards. Every bomber got back safely. Royal Air Force, United States, Dominion and Allied squadrons were engaged in the fighter action. Two Focke-Wulf 190s were destroyed, and six Spitfires are missing.

The Air Ministry added: "We have advanced a great deal in this last year, both in influence and in numbers." Professor Starkie told an Irish Times reporter. "We have a school now attached to the Institute, and have a great many students in art, music, science and literature, and our library has expanded considerably. Our work is purely cultural, and we have no political interests."

Professor Starkie regards his work as very stimulating. "It is intensely interesting in a country where individualism and personalities are so pronounced." He is working on a number of new books, and some of his earlier publications are being translated into Spanish.

BACK FROM SPAIN

PROFESSOR WALTER STARKIE

European wanderer, author, linguist, musician, Professor Walter Starkie has returned from Spain for a fortnight's holiday in his native Dublin, after two years as Director of the British Institute in Madrid.

In the course of his holiday he is reporting to the British Council on the work of the Institute in Spain and its expansion. The Institute, which is near the Prado, in the centre of Madrid, is fostering cultural relations with the Commonwealth of Nations, arranging lectures, concerts and art exhibitions.

"We have advanced a great deal in this last year, both in influence and in numbers." Professor Starkie told an Irish Times reporter. "We have a school now attached to the Institute, and have a great many students in art, music, science and literature, and our library has expanded considerably. Our work is purely cultural, and we have no political interests."

DEER ESCAPE AGAIN

About a hundred of the Phœnix Park deer which had escaped Friday's butchering leaped their corral railings during the hours of darkness and won their way to freedom.

They included a large number of bucks, which were due for slaughter on Saturday morning, the intention being to kill the bucks and give the does a few months more of life.

It is feared that many of the animals that got away may be lying badly injured in different parts of the Park, and animal welfare workers are making an exhaustive search to recover them. While the deer were being killed on Friday several animals were wounded by gunfire or gored by other animals during the frantic fighting in the corral.

Mr. W. Ahern, proprietor of Associated Merchandise Ltd., is doubtful as to when the next round-up will take place. An addition to the present corral is to be built, where the does and fawns can be captured and released. To prevent injury the does and fawns will be separated from the bucks in any future round-up. The slaughtered bucks have been shipped to England.

LATE NEWS

HOW NOVOROSSISK FELL

A Reuter Rome message early to-day quoted a despatch from Russia stating that Novorossisk was occupied after a concentric attack by German and Rumanian troops. After having pierced the exterior lines of defence, these forces took a fortified height by assault, and got into the town. The Russians carried out vigorous counter-attacks with the support of tanks, heavy artillery-fire and aircraft, but in vain. There was violent fighting, in which the Russians suffered heavily, their dead including many senior officers.

FRANCO-GERMAN PEACE

LONDON, Sunday.—Addressing French war prisoners released as a reward for the behaviour of the French during the Dieppe raid. The German commander at Dieppe, quoted by German Radio, said:—"Hitler and Pétain are agreed that this must be the last war between Germany and France; peace and friendship must henceforth reign between the two countries."—(Reuter.)

FEWER WILL TRAVEL

Big cuts in rail and 'bus services, announced yesterday by the British Ministry of War Transport, will release more trains for military and essential traffic, and save fuel and rubber. There will be no more cheap day tickets or cheap tickets for pleasure travel after October 5.

PUSHED BACK THROUGH MINEFIELDS

AXIS SET-BACK IN DESERT BATTLE

AXIS troops have been pushed back west of the minefield through which they advanced on Sunday week. Two panzer divisions and other German and Italian units have suffered severe losses, states a communiqué from Cairo, which adds that at no point did the Axis forces penetrate the main British defensive system on the El Alamein front in spite of every effort.

BLUES HELD AT RIVER

ARTILLERY COVERS CROSSING

FROM AN IRISH TIMES REPORTER.
IN THE SOUTH, Sunday.

WAR broke out again to-day, and now the Blues are attacking along the river which divided the two forces during last week's fighting.

The bridges have been destroyed, and a major incursion into Red territory can only be made by pontoon or trestle bridges. When the attempt will be made cannot be foreseen.

Artillery appears to have been used more in this phase of the war than at the beginning of the Reds' attack on Blueland, and the roar of field guns could be heard along the river valley for a long time this morning. The first move of the Blues that I saw was into a large town on the river, where their enemies forestalled a crossing by blowing up the bridge, while Blue armoured cars were less than a hundred yards away. Armoured cars, machine-gun carriers and motor cycle troops occupied the southern portion of the town, and all through the early afternoon they carried on an exchange of shots with Red troops in houses on the opposite bank. The Reds had field guns in position in a ruined building, and their stuttering roar, coupled with the bursts of Blue smoke, gave a realistic impression as each round was fired.

Further up the river I was looking for further action and feeling disappointed at the peaceful autumn scene when artillery fire sounded a sursum corda; rifle shots chimed in as trebles to the threatening bass voices of the guns, while machine-guns imitated the drums. I could not find even an infantry man in the thickly wooded valley, and the echoes made location of the guns impossible. Six hours later the artillery duel is still going on. Perhaps an effort to cover up an attempt to make a bridgehead or the Blues trying to wipe out a Red battery. So far, the present action seems to be following (necessarily) much the same lines as last week's, and similar small crossings have been made by the Blues as were made by their opponents.

Scouting parties have a particularly tough job fording the river with fighting kit and, perhaps, fighting immediately on landing, or even before it.

To-night will probably bring the beginning of the Blue's big thrust in this part of the war, which will probably not last as long as the last one.

YOUGHAL DROWNING

While bathing at Youghal, where he had been on holiday, a young man, Mr. Thomas J. McCullough, of the Munster and Leinster Bank, Rathfarnham, was swept beyond the breakwater on Saturday and was soon observed to be in difficulties. The lifeboat set out and brought him ashore in an unconscious condition. Artificial respiration was applied without success.

Mr. McCullough was son of the late Alderman Thomas McCullough and Mrs. Mary McCullough, James street, Drogheda. He was for ten years on the staff of the Munster and Leinster Bank head office at Cork, and two years ago was transferred as manager to Rathfarnham, Dublin, branch.

FIRES AT BREMEN

A reconnaissance 'plane, on Saturday, found big fires still burning in the port at Bremen, which was covered by smoke. For half-an-hour on Friday night bombs fell on the city at the rate of one in every second. Many of the bombs were 4,000-pounders. Eleven bombers are missing from the strong force sent out, in which the four-engined Lancasters, Stirlings and Halifaxes predominated.—(Press Association.)

Operations, United States Army, and the British Air Ministry last night stated:—

"Flying Fortresses B 17 and Boston DB 7 bombers of the United States Army Air Force, escorted by fighters, attacked targets in Northern France yesterday (Sunday). The Bostons bombed the enemy airfield at Abbeville. An hour later three squadrons of Flying Fortresses attacked the air frame factory at Meaulte, near Albert, while another squadron bombed the airfield at St. Omer. Many squadrons of the Royal Air Force, U.S.A.A.F., Dominion and other Allied fighters escorted the bombers and made diversionary sweeps. Two Fortresses and three fighters are missing."

WOMEN IN FIRE SERVICE

Eire's first women fire-fighters are now fully trained, and are ready to take their place beside the men if the Eire services are called out in an emergency. There are 128 members available.

Many further volunteers are required, for, during an emergency, they will relieve the male personnel of the A.F.S. for more onerous duties by carrying out clerical and telephone work. At present they attend local training in their areas, assist the area fire staff in keeping records of personnel, attending parades and training, and make themselves generally useful. They assist at incendiary bomb demonstrations and organise social functions.

All trained women volunteers have done turns in telephone duty at Central Fire Control, and under emergency conditions the present Central Fire Control will, by means of a series of direct lines, be incorporated as an auxiliary to the City A.R.P. Control centre, in Exchange Buildings. They are also trained in fire-fighting with hand appliances, and are taught the standard methods of dealing with incendiary bombs.

BOMBS ON BRITAIN

A number of people were rendered homeless, and emergency feeding centres were opened during last night, after an air attack on a North-East England town. There were casualties. Bombs fell in the town. The raiders, who dropped flares before the attack, were met by heavy A.A. fire.

The communiqué states: "During Friday-Saturday night our patrols in the northern sector continued. Yesterday, in the southern sector, the enemy continued his withdrawal westward under strong pressure from our mobile columns and artillery. His main concentrations are now again west of our minefields, through which they first advanced on Sunday night. Since then the enemy forces in the area have suffered severe losses in tanks, vehicles and personnel as a result of constant pressure by our land and Air Forces.

TOBRUK BOMBED

"In spite of every effort, the enemy failed to penetrate our main defensive system at any point. Regardless of unfavourable weather, our bombers and fighter bombers yesterday continued to harass the withdrawing enemy in the southern sector. Last night our heavy bombers attacked Tobruk. Our Malta fighters shot down a Macchi 202 and damaged MEs when a formation of enemy fighters attempted a sweep over the island."

LONDON, Sunday.—The German communiqué states:—"In North Africa the German and Italian air forces attacked British positions, concentrations of tanks and aerodromes. Explosions and fires were observed after direct hits. Over the North Africa fighting zone and over Crete, German and Italian fighters and A.A. artillery shot down twenty enemy aircraft.

"The Germans claim that their attack was nothing more than an armed reconnaissance."—(Reuter.)

The Headquarters of the U.S. Army in the Middle East reported that on September 5 U.S. heavy bombardment aircraft successfully attacked shipping facilities and a power station at Candia Bay, in face of heavy anti-aircraft fire. The power station was crippled.—(Reuter.)

"THREAT REMOVED"

CAIRO, Sunday.—Mr. Wendell Willkie, after touring the Egyptian front yesterday, with General Montgomery, stated: "A significant battle has been fought. My impression is that what has taken place here to-day and the preceding days has removed the desert threat to Egypt.

"I think the enemy has been stopped on this front. I do not say he has been eliminated. But this battle is as important as that which took place 140 years ago—when Napoleon was overcome. If he had not been stopped, not only Egypt, but the whole Middle East, would have been endangered."—(Reuter.)

IN NEW GUINEA

LONDON, Sunday.—Allied fighters and attack bombers carried out three destructive raids on a Japanese aerodrome and the surrounding area at Buna, in New Guinea.

United States forces, which landed on Making Island on August 17, comprised 200 men, and came from two submarines, says Tokyo Radio to-day. Another unit landed in the Japanese rear. "In the fighting Japanese bombers bombarded United States positions, and by evening the forward enemy forces took to their rubber boats. By dawn next day Japanese bombers were inflicting terrific damage and losses on the remaining Americans on the island. On August 20 and 21 Japanese reinforcements arrived, mopping up operations were effected, and United States losses exceeded more than half their number."—(Reuter.)

"Doubles" at the Park

THERE was another big attendance at the Phoenix Park on Saturday, the totalisator receipts being £4,696 10/-, as compared to £3,640 2/- for the corresponding meeting last year. Double events were scored by Major D. McCalmont, R. Fetherstonhaugh and J. Moylan with Neartic and War Sleigh, and by M. Collins and M. Wing with Lissaleen and Edvina.

There were many disappointments for backers, but the worst was when the odds-on favourite, Frontier Song, could do no better than finish third to Murty and Desdichado in the Rathbarnan Plate. Mr. D. Malone, who has been somewhat out of luck of late, won the Rathgar Plate with On Time, and Mrs. G. Robinson's Leopardstown winner, Sunny Star, made light of her penalty in the Sprint Handicap.

Surprise For Rovers

BOHEMIANS gave their most impressive display so far this season when, at Milltown yesterday, they created a surprise by defeating Shamrock Rovers, the Shield-holders, by 4-2, after having twice been in arrears.

It was a really good game, the exchanges being fast and exciting throughout, and Bohemians fully merited their success, if only for the plucky way they recovered after looking like fading out midway through the second half. Shamrock Rovers' collapse was remarkable; for they had more of the play, but failed to last the pace.

In the early stages Bohemians' right wing pair, Smith and Wright, were prominent, and Morris was unlucky not to have scored, as he was taken down when going through, but the infringement did not bring the expected penalty. Delaney, the best of the Rovers' forwards, got over three beautiful centres in rapid succession, and Westby, with Landers on the ground, netted, but the score was disallowed for "hands."

After half an hour Comerford headed Rovers' first goal, and five minutes later Crowe equalised, also with a "header." Soon after the restart Palmer, in Rovers' goal, made a fine one-handed save from Morris, and after thirteen minutes Delaney headed Rovers' second from a cross by Coad. Landers, who, like Palmer, gave a good display of goalkeeping, had a busy spell before McGrane put Bohemians level, and after the amateurs had rearranged their forward line, a strong finish by the visitors produced goals from Smith and Morris, who scored seven and three minutes from the end, respectively, to leave the amateurs good winners.

CORK WIN EASILY

Cork experienced little difficulty in defeating Limerick, 4-0 at the Mardyke yesterday. Limerick were never able to extend the home team, reinforced by the return of Hayes. Cork's defence was the best part in the team, and they fiver gave Limerick a real scoring chance. McGowan was the pick of the halves and Madden and O'Driscoll the outstanding forwards. Despite their impressive margin, however, the Cork attack showed much room for improvement, and, against the stiffer opposition of the Dublin teams, they will need to pull out something more. At centre-field, too, there was a certain amount of raggedness. It is of course, early to judge, but on their two games Cork have a nice, well-balanced team, but it needs plenty of training together. Aherne was the best of the Limerick forwards, but the visitors, despite the register against them, were better in defence than in attack. Harrington, in goal, was in good form, and O'Mahony and Hanley were helped to show up the weak spots in the Cork attack.

Dunne scored close on half-time, and after the interval goals came from Madden (2) and O'Mahony.

STRONG DEFENCES

Dundalk's Shield win over Drogheda by 2-1 at Oriel Park yesterday was not impressive. Brideville scored in the third minute, when Smith netted. Just before half-time Doran levelled for Dundalk, and 15 minutes from the end Grice got the winning goal. Brideville's sturdy defence, in which Webster was a grand goalkeeper, and Lappin, Shields and Coughian a fine line of half-backs, nearly won the day; while Dundalk's attack persisted in short passing, they were getting nowhere. Against this defence it was strong. Brideville's best pair in attack were Byrne and Smith. Stannix, Dundalk's new centre forward, did well without scoring. He missed one nice chance, but made several good openings.

NEW BRAY TEAM WELL BEATEN

Drumcondra defeated a newly-constituted Bray Unknowns team by 4-2 at Tolka Park yesterday, and had the home forwards pressed their advantages they could have increased that score. Kearns, the Bray inside right, opened the scoring, and McNamara, centre forward, replied for Drumcondra. Dempsey, right half from a free beat Cardiff with a powerful drive for the lead, and Rourke, right full-back, equalised for Drumcondra from a penalty.

SHELBOURNE START WELL

As in the match with Bohemians, all the Shelbourne players shaped well, Fallon, at centre-half, being responsible for much constructive work. He was ably supported on the wings by Walsh and Mullaly. Cassidy always was prominent in the forward line. The Gate defence—Meighan, Noonan, O'Reilly and Creevy—played well, but the Gate forwards gave an indifferent display.

CRICKET LEAGUE WON BY PHŒNIX

PHŒNIX have won the Leinster Senior Cricket League. They defeated Clontarf very easily on Saturday, while Leinster, who had been equal in points with them, were beaten by Pembroke. Leinster batsmen had difficulty in dealing with the bowling of M. Williams and Aylward, the latter taking four wickets for a run apiece. Merrion and Y.M.C.A. drew. One match remains to be played, but it cannot make any important difference to the League table, which now is as follows:—

CORK RETAIN HURLING TITLE

By PAT'O.

Cork 2-14
Dublin 3-4

Cork won their 13th All-Ireland hurling title at Croke Park yesterday, thus leading Kilkenny and Tipperary by one in the number of championships won. Dublin proved worthy challengers and held the champions score for score in a fast 40 minutes. Then Cork's speed in hitting told its tale. Dublin lost one glorious chance when an open goal was missed at a vital stage. Cork aimed high for points, and Beckett's goal at the 50th minute clinched the issue. Dublin's close tackling held Cork's skill for a long time and it was a gallant struggle. At times the hurling reached a high standard, though injuries to players somewhat marred the second half.

Donegan saved fast shots before Dublin were away and a skilful Cork defence was tested; Porter cleared, and Frank White, the Dublin captain, placed McDonnell for Dublin's opening point. Within a minute Cork were back and Condon's free balanced. The champions hurled beautifully for ten minutes, Lynch, Condon and Kennefick hitting accurate frees against the wind for useful points.

Dublin fought back with a will, a great drive by O'Brien reached the Cork square and Kennedy crashed through the balancing goal. Dublin were playing well, but Cork's smooth style brought points from Ring and Lynch. Then came a strong Dublin rally, which roused the crowd when McDonnell smashed through Dublin's second goal, to take the lead, 7 points to 6. Beckett's point balanced for Cork, and they took the lead close to half-time with a good goal by Quirke from Ring's centre. Half-time—Cork 1-7, Dublin 2-1.

Cork raced through for a point at the resumption, but Dublin battled back and Wade burst through for a point. Porter was injured in Cork's goal and Buttimer came on. Tobin and Kennefick pointed for Cork; Skehal, coming on as sub, shot a lovely Dublin point, and Wade and Ring exchanged points before Gray shot out to Devitt, who drove home a great Dublin goal, putting the team 3 points to 12. Dublin got their great chance when an open goal was missed by Kennedy. Cork finished with abundant pace; Quirke, coming out to the 40 mark, shot two valuable points, and Beckett, crossing over, used his feet well to kick a decisive goal. A free by Lynch, the Cork captain, brought the champions' last point.

At the Fresham Hotel last night, Mr. J. J. Walsh presided at a supper in honour of the Cork hurling champions. Over 200 supporters paid tribute to the Cork and Dublin teams.

The "Gate."—The attendance at Croke Park yesterday was 27,313, and the receipts £1,878 5/4.

EXHIBITION GOLF AT ELM PARK

Red Cross Day at Elm Park yesterday was a great success; what with the exhibition match, the open mixed foursomes and the side shows on the putting greens, the Merrion Branch will benefit substantially. A big gallery followed the exhibition in which the Irish champion, Harry Bradshaw, partnered Kevin Garvey, East of Ireland champion, against Cecil Ewing, holder of the Western title and Kevin O'Connor. Bradshaw and Garvey, after turning 3 up, won 2 and 1; but most of the good golf was played by the Kilcroney man, O'Connor. Ewing was somewhat out of his element on the narrow fairways and could not do himself justice. It was the first time Garvey played the course, off which he frequently strayed; but the short game of all four was excellent, even though Bradshaw did not putt as accurately as usual. Ewing, the longest hitter of the four, had a couple of fine holes—3's at the 348 yards 11th and 324 yards 15th, the others down in bogey 4's, losing both. In that way he reduced the greasers to two at the 11th and one at the 18th, but Bradshaw's 2 at the 17th clinched the issue.

THE UNION OF IRISH SCHOOLS

The Union of Irish Schools will hold their competition on Wednesday at Milltown, where the first tee will be reserved from 1.30. Compared to last year, there is an increase of two schools, Coleraine Academical Institution and St. Gerard's, Bray, bringing the total to 21 teams. Clongowes Wood College and Mountjoy School start at 1.35.

DUN LAOGHAIRE YACHTING

Windward (Mr. J. O'Leary) keeps in the limelight; she won the Dalkey Island race (Smalldridge Cup) on Saturday, on handicap, 2nd, 3rd and 4th club prizes going to Highflyer, Erora and Nonia, all three yachts, like the winner, having long handicaps.

Towards the close of the first round of the 21-Footers, Garavoge (Messrs. Martin and Crabbe) robbed Oola of the lead, and won by 30 secs. from the latter, with Nancen in third place and Maureen next. Only four finished, Innisfallen fouling the jetty mark at the start, and Geraldine dropping out on the second round, after a luffing match with Nancen.

Eileen was just home in the 17-Footers' match, being followed through the winning line by Silver Moon, Deliginis Rosemary, Rita and Bobolink, and, on the handicap, Bobolink (Mr. J. J. Macken) took 1st, Deliginis 2nd and Silver Moon 3rd club prize.

The club prizes in the Mermaids' race were taken by Mike (Mr. R. O'Connell) Daphne and Stella, the scratch boat, Minx being unable to concede the handicaps. Six Wags finished out of ten starters, their order through the winning line being—Penelope, Mollie, Jacqueline, Coquette, Vega and Blue Bird, and, on the handicap, the last-named won, Jacqueline taking 2nd, Penelope 3rd and Mollie 4th club prize.

Russia's Part

The position of the Russian forces in front of Stalingrad continues to be described officially as "grave," and there is small doubt that its gravity has increased during the last forty-eight hours. The Germans have been suffering tremendous losses in their attack; but Marshal von Bock, realising the rapid approach of the Russian winter, is determined to capture Stalingrad with the least possible delay, in order, inter alia, that he may be able to launch an attack in force on Moscow before the Russians shall have had time to reorganise their resistance. In the fighting for Stalingrad the German commander has been making use of huge masses of men and material. It is reported that he flung twenty-five fresh infantry divisions into a comparatively narrow sector of the front in an effort to smash the Soviet defences. From the outset he has enjoyed a local superiority in respect of aircraft, and there can be no question at all of the superiority of his transport system. The Russians have been fighting with terrific courage, contesting every yard of territory, and sacrificing their lives with dogged heroism, but Marshal von Bock's pressure has been inexorable, and the Russian defenders have been forced steadily to yield ground. According to the Vichy radio, fighting was taking place yesterday in the suburbs of Stalingrad. There was hand-to-hand fighting in the streets, and even in private gardens; and it is evident that the Soviet High Command will do everything in its power, even at this late stage, to prevent, or at least to postpone, the fall of this important city. Nobody knows precisely what number of reserves Marshal Timoshenko may have in readiness to launch a counter-offensive in the Stalingrad region. It will be remembered that he saved Moscow last year by a skilfully-timed stroke, just when the Germans seemed to have the Russian capital at their mercy; and it is at least possible that a like stratagem may be tried again in the case of Stalingrad. Actually, General Zukhov, who led the counter-attack from Moscow, is attacking at present south-west of Kaluga, where the Germans admit "heavy defensive battles." The Russians also have gone over to the offensive near Rzhev, and, despite the heavy losses that they have been sustaining recently, their initiative seems to have lost nothing of its dash. Their plight in the South undeniably is parlous. The Germans last night, in one of their Sondermeldungen, or special announcements, claimed to have taken possession of Novorossisk, one of the Russians' few remaining naval bases on the Black Sea. Their forces appear to have reached the Volga at more than one point, with the result that Russia's lateral communications, running north and south, have been upset.

The main object of the German strategy is clear. It is not so much to occupy this city or that, valuable as such occupations may be from the point of view of moral, but to annihilate the Russian armies in the field in order to enable Herr Hitler's generals to devote their undivided attention to the British and Americans in the spring. There is little doubt now that the Germans have resigned themselves to the inevitability of another winter of war. Even if they should secure a military decision against Russia during the next six weeks or two months, they still would find themselves faced with the growing strength of the Anglo-Saxon allies—a fact which makes them doubly anxious to "neutralise," if not to rout, the Russians. The Russian High Command is just as clever as its doughty opponent, Monsieur Stalin and his advisers have no illusions regarding the strength of the Wehrmacht; but they know that, so long as the Soviet forces remain more or less intact, even if the Caucasus should be overrun, and even if Moscow itself should be sacrificed, there can be no question of a military decision. Russia's object, therefore, is to defend her strong points for as long as possible, and then to withdraw—an operation in which the Soviet generals have shown themselves to be conspicuously skilful, forcing the Germans to maintain huge armies in the field far away from their home bases, and exposing them once more to the rigours of the Russian winter. The defence of Stalingrad has been conducted in masterly style. Although the Germans still are immensely powerful, it is quite certain that the sharpness of their offensive spearhead has been blunted, and that, even if they should take Stalingrad to-morrow, they hardly would be able to undertake a further offensive against the Western Powers before next spring. That raises the whole problem of the widely canvassed second front. The British and Americans are piling up vast forces of men and machines in Great Britain. So far they have resisted the popular clamour for an invasion of the European continent, and they have been upbraided bitterly on the ground that they have left the Russians in the lurch. This war, however, has such colossal ramifications that allied strategy must be regarded as an indivisible whole. Even in defeat, the Russians are making an enormous contribution to the allied cause. They are immobilising millions of highly-trained German soldiers, while the British and Americans are mobilising their great resources against the coming struggle. The Allies are working on the basis of a long-term strategy, in which Russia's present ordeal has its appointed place. The war, which has entered upon its fourth year, actually has not yet passed beyond the stage of preliminary skirmishes. The main issue, between totalitarian Germany and the Anglo-Saxon democracies, has still to be faced.

Donald Goes To War

Mr. Walt Disney, creator of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, and many other well-known film personalities, has been quoted as saying: "We make the pictures, and then the professors tell us what they mean." Intellectuals have flocked to the cult of Disney as they once, not so long ago, joined enthusiastically to revere Charlie Chaplin. The people, indeed, discovered Chaplin long before the critics began to analyse him; they were rolling round in their seats in hearty and uncomplex laughter while the psychologists were tugging their beards and demanding to know why the people laughed. As usual, the people had the best of it. They have had the best of Disney. Fathers and grandfathers have gone to the cinema and revelled in the antics of Goofy and Dopey and Dumbo and all the exquisite Disney tribe, caring nothing that earnest men with domed foreheads were sitting at the back of the stalls and frowning over the serious problem of Freudian interpretation, or reconcilation with the principles of dialectical materialism. The artist himself is not a psychologist. The remarkably unified mind of the many-handed Disney studio has concentrated upon the production of entertainment. It works for those people who are glad to enter a cinema and become young again; to take a naïve delight in the ludicrous adventures of a belligerent little duck with a sailor hat, as they still delight—perhaps secretly—in "Alice in Wonderland" and Grimm's Fairy Tales. War conditions have not closed the wonderland of Disney, but they have turned it to a more serious purpose. "Bambi," which recently made its appearance in London, is to be his last full-length cartoon for the duration; for Mickey has been drafted, and Donald Duck is working full-time in the Navy, which he has always favoured in his dress. Disney cartoons will be made to teach fire-fighting, rivetting, and a multitude of diverse and technical subjects. The United States Navy has commissioned twenty such films, and other departments are following suit. It is reported that after a recent Donald Duck feature designed to encourage the payment of taxes about 37 per cent. of the audience said that they felt more ready to pay. The psychologists should have some fun in working that out.

Cinema Notes

By Our Film Correspondent.

GONE WITH THE WIND (Savoy): Any woman in the company of any group of men is essentially the realist in a gathering of romantics, the lower portions of whose psychological gardens contain varying numbers of unmistakable fairies. For that reason, when Margaret Mitchell created the tempestuous, wanton, designing Scarlett O'Hara against the tremendous background of the American Civil War, in her thousand and thirty-seven page novel, "Gone With the Wind," she added to the gallery of women in fiction a portrait which would offer little appeal to masculine readers. Yet many men have read the book, because Scarlett becomes a living, breathing personality in its pages, and it is impossible to ignore her. From the first moment that Vivien Leigh appears in the film version, putting on her "new green-flowered muslin dress," to attend the Wilkes's barbecue at Twelve Oakes, to the final scene when she sinks to the stairs of her Atlanta mansion, defeated and yet still unconquered, she loses none of Scarlett's vitality, and she makes her more unforgettable than ever. It is an outstanding performance in an almost perfect picture, and in it one can say without exaggeration, Vivien Leigh does for the screen what Sarah Bernhardt did for the stage in "La Dame aux Camelias," and others of her famous rôles.

I describe "Gone With the Wind" as almost perfect in no severely critical sense. Few jewels are without flaw, and this film is not without defects; but they are so slight that they merely serve to emphasise the splendour of this achievement of the motion picture industry. It cannot be written, with honesty, for instance, that Leslie Howard seems happy in the part of that, vague, sad-eyed, ineffectual dreamer, Ashley Wilkes; his scene with Scarlett amidst the ruins of Tara, when he tells her that he loves her so much that he had very nearly agreed to desert the best wife in the world, is the one discordant note in the whole film. On the other hand, Clark Gable makes Rhett Butler as unscrupulously and as challengely alive as Vivien Leigh, the cat-eyed Scarlett. Olivia de Havilland is perfectly cast as the gentle Melanie, too honourable to see dishonour in Scarlett, because she loved her greatly to the end. That fine actor, Thomas Mitchell, plays the part of Mr. O'Hara with zest, and yet, to one reader of the book, seemed to fail to portray him as Margaret Mitchell intended. All the smaller parts are perfectly played. Dr. and Mrs. Meade, Aunt Pittypat, the wronged Frank Kennedy, Sue Ellen, Mrs. O'Hara, India Wilkes, Mammy (a notably fine performance this, by the coloured actress, Hattie McDaniel)—all the characters you remember so well—live and breathe again in this film as they lived and breathed in the book.

There is little of humour in this picture. So much so that a tense audience laughed from the necessity of escaping from its ineluctable sadness at incidents which were not really funny (as when Melanie came down the stairs at Tara with Ashley's sword to face the Yankee deserter). The whole tragedy of a nation's birth-pangs are in this picture; the bitter anguish of the Civil War, when the easy, laughter-loving Southerns went against the armoured North with nothing but their cotton, their slaves and their arrogance; clashed and failed at Gettysburg, and sacrificed for ever the warm, golden security of their past.

The Man Who Came to Dinner (Adelphi), the film version of the George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart play, which recently ran two years on Broadway, is easily one of the wittiest sophisticated comedies shown to Dublin cinema audiences since "Dinner at Eight." The central figure is that of Sheridan Whiteside, famous author, lecturer and vitriolic wit, who, in his own view, suffers more than anybody else from the inadequacies of the human race, but, in the stated opinion of his secretary, Maggie Cutler (brilliantly portrayed by Bette Davis), has one advantage over everybody else in the world—he never had to meet Sheridan Whiteside. Monty Woolley, who created the rôle of Sherry on the stage, represents him in the film as the kind of character Shaw would have invented if he had felt an urge for self portrayal. What happens when this master of the studied insult visits an Ohio small-town and fractures his hip on the threshold of Mr. Ernest W. Stanley (who rated "quite high in ball-bearings" staying a month instead of just to dinner, provides the humour of this film, which brilliantly handled by an excellent cast, remains a clever comedy throughout.

The standard of acting is kept high by everybody, from the leads right down to the small-part actress as the nurse, who originally took up nursing to alleviate the sufferings of humanity; but after one month of ministering to "The Man Who Came to Dinner" abandons her profession in favour of munition making, because she thinks the human race should be exterminated. ("If Florence Nightingale had nursed you, she would have married Jack the Ripper"). Whatever happens, don't let your chance to see this film go completely with the wind.

My Favourite Blonde (Theatre Royal) is what Bob Hope has been calling Madeleine Carroll for years, and it provides a neat title for their first picture together. Bob, as everybody knows, employs a team of six to think up his wisecracks for him, and anybody who sees this fast moving, extremely funny picture will agree that he should still keep them on the pay-roll. It is a story of a coast to coast pursuit of the beautiful agent, but in the end Madeleine Carroll delivers the cypher, and Bob finds that he is just a carpet tack to a great big beautiful blonde magnet.

Women in War (Carlton) suggests that the first mentioned in relation to the second is one of those additional horrors with which the Hague Convention meant to den after it had discussed the problem of poison gas. The conflict of the sex in this film is, in fact, much more real than the vague background of war which takes nearly fifty minutes to date itself as having all taken place in 1940. Wendy Barrie gives a fine performance as the young woman who has become so embittered by her experiences when arraigned and acquitted on a charge of murdering an unwelcome admirer that she magnifies the resultant chip on her shoulder into a cross. Several can film reviewers described the playing of the mother rôle by Elsie Janis as a stand-out performance, but it seemed, in no way exceptional to me. Something to watch for is Dennie Moore's clever miniature of a little Cockney nurse ("I must be slipping. 'Ere I am 'olding your hand and your pulse is perfectly normal"). The war scenes are grimly realistic, notably that of the dive-bombing attack on a transport, and the climax when the nurses get caught in their own artillery barrage is almost insupportably tense.

The Little Minister (Astor), on the other hand, has not worn quite so well, although it still is a moderately good picture. If you fancy the idea of Hepburn, Andy Devine and Donald Crisp with Scottish accents, and John Beal as a clergyman, you should see this film. Briefly it is an adaptation of J. M. Barrie's famous tale about a gypsy girl who almost spoiled a minister's career by "falling in love" with him. The period is 1840 or thereabouts.

Mississippi Gambler (Corinthian) is just what it sounds—a tough, American mystery, solved, as usual, by an all-American newspaperman with an all-American hat on the back of his head. The man is Kent Taylor, the motto, "Cherchez la femme," and la femme Frances Langford. Good solid entertainment. Also on the programme, "Rawhide Rangers," an average "Western," with Johnny MacBrown and Fuzzy Knight.

The Scarlet Pimpernel (Capitol) has stood the test of time better than most re-issues. A period piece always wears better than a "modern" film, because the costumes cannot "date"; and this film seems to have retained all its charm and all of its excitement. Madame Guillotine is as terrifying as ever; Leslie Howard's delightful foppish portrayal of Sir Percy Blakeney Bart., has lost none of its freshness; Raymond Massey's Citizen Chauvelin seemed as blood-curdling, and Merle Oberon's Marguerite as enchanting on Saturday last as she did some years ago when I was that much younger and more impressionable.

Week-end in Havana (Pavilion). Friday (two days)—"Great Guns."

THE PARK DEER

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—When the committee of which I was a member waited on the Commissioner we did our best to induce him to recommend the withdrawal of the contract for the slaughtering of the deer. He refused to do this, and his attitude remained sphinx-like. When our deputation was about to withdraw I asked him would he reconsider the matter if he was convinced that the proposed method of slaughter was cruel. He said he would "have to be certain of this first." Your description in this day's Irish Times shows that the methods were even more horrible than we anticipated.

I was told I was an optimist if I thought our appeals would have the slightest effect on the authorities. This proved correct.—Yours, etc.,

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles Na gCopaleen.

(THIS is the first time a newspaper article was started in brackets. Innovation, you see. The homeric tasks of creation. Bringing into being a thing hitherto not here, much more exhausting than building pyramids in Egypt. Please remind me to close the bracket at the end of the article. We must be neat, have some system. Otherwise we will merit the doubtful epithet "slovenly" and the finger of scorn will be pointed at us. Only last night it occurred to me that a good name for a skin specialist's motor vehicle would be "acne-car." And to-day that impeccable little lumpeen of wit is on your breakfast table. Speed, efficiency, see? At lunch time you can pass it off as your own. Now please stop biting your nails and listen to me.
